This is definitely a great idea, backed by research. Technology is accessible and the idea is scalable with appropriate local resources. We don't understand why you did not present both the B2C and the B2B models together to the challenge, under one umbrella, it would have been much more attractive and simple. We would like to know more about your go to market strategy with the school application?

Agile is nice, but you still need some structure - technology architecture, testing procedures, etc. Also, need to think about how you train the mentors.
