Comments from Evaluator 1:

The project is at a very early stage. It is entitled “social entrepreneurship education network” and is developed in parallel in Germany and Chile, What is interesting is that the two projects are not linked which tends to demonstrate that it will be difficult to have a global approach. Social entrepreneurship is a trendy and important issue and training and networking social entrepreneurs is a good idea. Why would they join? To do what together? They address an already competitive market on the training side (see MOOCs offer) and on the networking side (other German platform: world vision center for social innovation). They propose to use the seed money to hire a developer which doesn’t seem very coherent at this stage as technology is a core component and should be incorporated in the founders’ team.

Comments from Evaluator 2:

The user scenario does not provide a clear description of the user experience in the platform (aim of the scenario) and the format of the courses they offer / will do. It would have been good clarifying whether the platform would work associately to the existing site, by simply adding exchange features and open source content in the field. Although the team has done interesting movememts outside, should be more specific in terms of pricing and countries they wish to prioritize to keep enlarging the network. It is difficult to read their next steps in that sense (besides the platform). Since the team is numerous, it would also be important understand their decision-making process and who leads the project. They are a passionate and skilled team, but leadership is also important.
